DUTCH 'HUMAN OSTRICH' DIES

Wharf Laborer Had Appetite for Coins, Bolts and Rivets.

By United Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Holland's "human ostrich" is dead.

The Lancet, leading British journal of medicine, in an exhaustive technical treatise on "picas," or human craving for unnatural articles of diet, announced today that a Dutch wharf laborer recovered after attempting to digest three pounds and eleven ounces of hardware.

Discharged from the hospital, the patient left behind a five inch coal chisel, weighing eleven ounces, and a large assortment of coins, bolts, rivets, wire nails, tin tacks, screws and hooks and several small flints he had swallowed.

Six months later he returned, suffering weakness and loss of appetite, symptoms which he evidenced on the first visit.

This time a piece of tin plate and a portion of slate pencil were removed from the patient, and he immediately succeeded in evading the hospital attendants to swallow a piece of soap and two ounces of camphorated spirits.

Again he recovered and was removed to an insane asylum, where he succumbed to fever and inflammation of the right lung.

BRITAIN HAS FASHION SHOW

Disregards Mandates of Parisian Modistes—200,000 Buyers Invited.

By United Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Great Britain today struck the first blow in disregard of the Rue de la Paix's feminine fashions.

It was an all-British fashion show at Agricultural Hall, Islington, North London, which, despite the government mandate of wartime economy displays all the frills and furbelows of midday's summer supply.

Wax figures and animate flesh and blood models display the lampshade skirt, the shepherdess' design and panniers, all of which emphasize hips.

DENVER GIVES UP COMMISSION

Colorado Capital Goes Back to Council And Mayor System.

By United Press.

DENVER, Colo., June 5.—Denver has just overthrown the commission form of government after three years' trial. The city today is under the former mayorality scheme.

The change was made at a special election held last month. Robert W. Speer being elected mayor of a charter amendment which was the antithesis of commission government. Instead of five commissioners, Mayor Speer is the government.

While the legislative power under the new charter is vested in a councilmanic board of nine members, Speer appointed four of them.

The other five were chosen in a manner novel for a city of Denver's size. The Denver Civic and Commercial Association, the Trades Assembly, the Real Estate Exchange, the Rotary Club and the Manufacturers' Association each elected a councilman.

This plan was followed to save the people the cost of an election. Future boards will be elected by popular vote.

The new charter created an Industrial Bureau to encourage industries and the employment of labor.

A "Mayor's Cabinet" was created, consisting of the mayor, the manager of improvement and parks, the manager of revenue, the manager of health and charity and the manager of safety and excise.

Speer appointed these heads of departments.

Division of responsibility caused the downfall of the local commission government. The people wanted a centralized authority and responsibility.
